And I left out as we got downtown and we passed the Gerst Haus they got the giggling and looking at each other and so I asked them what was going on and John told me that he and Mom had parked their the Gerst Haus and I thought it was so adorable that two people their age so much in love went parking just like we used to do in high school

One of my Fondest Memories of John was it hadn't been too long after Mom and John started dating they came and pick me up from work and took me downtown and I had a ball watching them they could not keep their hands off of each other they were like two little high school kids flirting and kissing and being lovey-dovey while Mom was driving down the road of course I was scared to death because she kept putting her eyes on him instead of the road LOL but I just remember how much love you could see between the two of them
