Sad to see that Butch has passed away. He was the lead guitarist when I came to Nashville in 2007 and 2008 to record an album called Two Hearts, with Gary Branchaud as the producer. We had such wonderful time together, and he was the kindest and greatest guitarist to add to the music. Usually I am doing the lead myself, but it was a true pleasure to step back and see and here Butch nailed everything with such an easy and brilliant musicality. I have often been thinking about Butch, and how he was. Today I found the photos from the trip that went missing, and had such joy to the memories. You can watch some of them at my site which I shared today on www.reylarsen.com/Nashville Photos To Butch family I want to send my best of love and greetings! Rey Larsen

My Great Friend from Junior High in Madison. We ran around on motorbikes and played Music anytime we could. His Dad would carry us around to play any kid of music, anywhere available. Butch could play anything on his guitar that he heard. He could absolutely play anything Beatles and sound just like George Harrison. I fondly remember has Grestch Country Gentleman guitar, that my Dad was jealous of. He would tote that thing around on the back of his Yamaha motorbike. We even rode his Yamaha 100 out to a Nolensville Rd. Music store just to see a Vox Super Beatle amplifier. It was taller than either one of us. So many fond memories with Butch.....

Butch Davis was the guy. Emblazoned in my mind with his Beatle boots, great guitar player, Yamaha 100 twin and much Moxy for a little guy. That Yamaha 100 Twin was the big bike in the group. I remember playing "motorbike tag" one evening zooming around neighborhoods chasing one another around dusk (kids don't try this at home)! My fondest of memories come from those youthful scooter days and my pals! I lost contact way back when, but will never forget him and the days we shared long ago. My condolences to the family.
