He was my Hero. We had some bad times but a lot of great times.. Being his oldest I have memories that none of my siblings have. We had the country. We had God in some of our long conversations. But my daddy will be in my heart forever.. As the saying goes " you were ready to spread your wings and Soar, but I was not ready." You're home now Daddy no pain, just Happiness. I love you, give Gabriel Steed a hug for me..You are truly at peace 🕯️ now..

Mr Jeans allowed me to be a friend and cut his hair for the last 12 or so years. He would bring me cool wood work, and made me this great lamp out of popsicle sticks. I still have it in my home office as a write this. I enjoyed his stories, kindness, and understanding of this strange world we sometimes live in. I will truly miss him. And very thankful God put him in my life. His impact and influence was very much felt. Nothing but love Joe. Thank you my friend 🙏

Joe was a gentleman and a good friend. After he moved in with his daughter who lives next door, Joe and I would sit outside and enjoy coffee in the mornings or ice cream in the evenings for several years. I miss him and will hold dear all the conversations and friendship we shared. Soar Joe, soar into the heavens of eternal peace and joy. May the memories of you bring comfort to all who love you. ❤️😊

When I was 3 I ran away from home. We lived in Chicago I stepped off the porch into a snowbank and Daddy pulled me out.
